3 DEC 2026

How does environmental harm shape the lives of victims of Rome Statute crimes, and how can reparative justice help to repair it? An expert discussion drawing on international law, emerging jurisprudence and comparative experiences, which will help launch a knowledge framework within the TFV on the environmental dimensions of reparative justice.

TOPICS

1. The imperative of maximum environmental protection
2. Environmental harm and the Rome Statute
3. Environmental harm in situations before ICC jurisdiction
4. Ecosystem restoration as a form of reparation
5. Partnerships to equip the TFV for environment-inclusive reparations
6. Recommendations for the ICC, TFV, States Parties, and civil society
